SUMMER TERM UPDATE

We hope you are all staying safe and still working at home.

As we move into the Summer term, some parents have asked whether additional learning packs will be available to collect from school. We have not prepared hard packs for pupils as we are trying to limit the reasons for you leaving your houses. However, we have updated our Home Learning section of the website. You will now see more pages, split into categories of learning. Please check this section regularly as we add and update things weekly.

We have also been adding events and things to do via our Twitter account. If you do not follow us on twitter, these can all be accessed through the front page of the website.

Anomaly - The children can access the activities they usually enjoy on our big playground screen via YouTube. This link for ActivAllPlay has been shared on our Twitter feed.

JMB Education - We have an account which I can share with you so that you can access their learning resources at home. Just go to <https://www.jmbeducation.com/> and log in using the username Aqueduct and the password Wearegreat! (Please note that the username and password are case sensitive.)

The Shropshire Library Service have also released an extensive list of resources and links available to support home learning. This can be found in the 'Home Learning Links' section of the website.

The BBC are releasing daily lessons for English and Maths. These can be accessed through the Home Learning section of our website which has its own BBC daily lessons tab.

Teachers will be adding Purple Mash tasks and challenges to their Class Dojo pages each week so please look out for these. There will also continue to be TIRS challenges for the children. Please contact the school via telephone or by using the contact form on the website if you need reminding of your child's log on details. Mrs Clarke also wants me to mention the importance of reading every day too. We anticipate there being lots of stickers and free books to be given out when we return!

For now, we miss you all, stay safe and look after each other.
